Thinking Out Loud

H. M. L.

Up here in the mountains we still set store by old American customs. We like to say of a man for instance that "his word is as good as his bond." After the battle with the pickets Thursday, Scott Erwin, CIO organizer, gave his word to Sheriff Carl Tobiassen that hereafter the CIO affiliate, which attempted to close down the Murchie mine, would do "peaceful" picketing, with five or six pickets on duty at the junction of the Murchie mine and Red Dog roads. Thus far that promise has been kept.

We credit the CIO affiliate with taking care of Jim Vasion's wife and seven children. Jim Vasion was jailed with five others for rioting Thursday morning. Following the habeas corpus proceedings in the Superior Court Saturday, in which reduction of bail was denied the prisoners. Mrs. Vasion emerged from the courthouse with the majority of her brood of youngsters. Spying a group whom apparently she thought were the CIO auxiliary standing near at hand, she scooped up two handfuls of road gravel and throwing them at the women, screamed: "You— (Shakespearean epithet)—got my husband into jail, now you get him out!"

The demand had its effect, for a little later Grant Spear, a youth whose blond head Thursday morning took a sad drubbing, and who had been bailed out Friday by a representative of the International Labor Defense, was returned to his cell and Vasion released. Since but $2,000 cash bail had been immediately provided, the prisoners voted to transfer bail to Vasion

Spear declared he stood on his constitutional rights when interviewed after the battle. An arresting statement. Who is it who befuddles the minds of our young men, to make them think for an instant that they may stand guard in a public highway, let some cars pass and deny passage to others? Another young man leading the riot, in the midst of the fray yelled: "President Roosevelt is back of us! Come on boys," or words to that effect. Who is it that poisons the minds and warps the thinking of young Americans?

There is just one answer to these queries. It is the Communists. The infiltration of communists, "the boring from within," in the CIO organization under John L .Lewis, who expected to use the Communists instead of being used by them, gives the CIO its orientation. The communists use all governmental agencies of our democracy, so long as they serve, to help them to their goal, which, as has been demonstrated leads inevitably to government by one strong man, a dictator, and ruthless butcher or oppressor of all those who dissent.

That this leftist domination of the CIO has tainted the entire National Labor Relations Board set up is indicated by significant utterances by some of the board members themselves. For instance Edwin S. Smith in the Daily Worker, November 21, 1936, championed the cause of the reds in Spain. In the New York Times, April 4, 1936, he made the recommendation that the LaFollette Committee investigate patriotic organizations which are opposing communism in the United States. This recommendation if carried out would mean investigating the activities of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and many other sterling patriotic bodies.

Filtering down from the top, then, comes communist teaching which finally results in inciting our good American boys to riot, law violation and the intimidation of other citizens. Intimidation, indeed, is the weapon usually employed. It was the one employed here by the Murchie pickets and the "sympathizers."

Before the peace officers intervened, the car of the superintendent was deliberately wrecked by a planned collision. The pump man, whose function in mining is vital, was forced by the "peaceful" pickets to return to town and to obtain the aid of a peace officer to get through the line. A rock was hurled through both widows of a car narrowly missing the driver's head. While this was going on, women auxiliaries of the CIO were soliciting food and money of our merchants in Nevada City and Grass Valley. When they were refused, as with few exceptions, they were, the solicitors carefully jotted down the name of the proprietor, presumably for the purpose of listing them as unfair. These are minor forms of terrorism. But up here in Nevada County we are a hardy lot. Most of us have descended from the Argonauts. The mass fear of populous centers has not weakened the moral fibre here.

Indignant and law abiding citizens we have heard in the last few days, demanding that extra-legal methods be used in expelling the communist element. If these hot heads, who would probably be extremely reductant to take any active part in their own schemes, will subside and not complicate or cloud a situation which is now as clear as daylight, the community will be well served. The Board of Supervisors stands ready in any emergency to employ as many sheriff's deputies as may be needed. Sheriff Tobiassen has amply demonstrated his ability to quell riots, to maintain peace. The courts are functioning to the satisfaction of everyone who believes in law enforcement. How foolish it would be to spill the beans now.

INFANT DAUGHTER LAID TO REST

Funeral services for the late Darlene Wells, aged four months, eight days, were held Sunday interment being made in Pine Grove cemetery at Nevada City. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wells of the Glenbrook section, between Nevada City and Grass Valley. Holmes Funeral Home had charge of arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Smith had as week end guests, Mrs. Smith's sister, Miss Avis Caldwell, and bfother, Warren Caldwell, who came up from Sacramento. Mr. Caldwell, state traffic officer has been attending traffic school in Sacramento the past two weeks.

Birthday Ball Fund To Fight Childhood's Scourge on 4 Fronts

The President's birthday ball next Saturday night offers an opportunity for every humane man and woman in Nevada county to contribute pleasurably to one of the finest charities in the United States. It will be held in Grass Valley Memorial hall and an excellent program has been arranged.

The money derived from this event will this year be used to establish a national foundation to attack the scourge of infantile paraylsis on four fronts.

The first phase will be the endowment of scientific research in an effort to find a means of immunization from this scourge Universities and scientific laboratories will be assisted in their search.

The second phase will consist of renewed efforts to watch for outbreaks of infantile paralysis and to confine them to their localities by proper quarantine.

Third, the President's Birthday Ball funds will be used to prevent the crippling after effects that so often result from incomplete medical attention. New discoveries pertaining to treatment of children suffering from the paralysis aftermath will be heralded throughout the hospitals and among physicians of the country. In other this will be an information service.

Fourth, funds will be provided for hospitals and clinics engaging in rescuing child victims of the disease.

Dollars are the munitions needed in this national campaign against this scourge of childhood, though as a matter of fact, adults are sometimes also victims of the paralysis.

Dr. Walter Hawkins of Nevada City is chairman of the Nevada City and Elmer E. Stevens is chairman of the Grass Valley committee.

An excellent program has been prepared. Mrs. Marian Libbey will contribute part of the program from this city with choral singing and other musical numbers. The program is expected to last about an hour after which there will be dancing to the excellent music of a special orchestra.

Discussing the event Mr. Stevens this morning said:

On January 29th the people of Nevada County will have an excellent opportunity to help in the present great drive against infantale paralysis when the Nevada County committee for the President's Ball presents the annual dance at the Veteran's Memorial building, in Grass Valley.

This year all of the funds raised by every county in the United States will go to the new National Foundation so that a great financial reservoir will be created in an effort to triumph over this deared disease of infantile paralysis through the avenues of research and treatment.

No comment need be made on the seriousness of this challenge to wipe out this dreaded disease. With the swiftness and destructive force of lightning, it strikes without warning and leaves in its wake disabled, crippled children and even adults. Last year from January to December, the United States Public Health Service reported 9,415 fatal cases. Let us in Nevada County do our part to stop this! !

PROPAGANDA TO STIR UNREST IN COUNTY DECRIED

To the Editor,
Nevada City Nugget
Nevada City, California.
Dear Sir:

Nevada County is now being treated to what seems to be an organized effort to breed discontent and unrest among the workers. A campaign of propaganda is underway which is best evidenced by the daily telegrams and "demands" received by the Sheriff's office. The true facts of the situation are being so deliberately distorted as to creat the implication that the peace officers of the district are committing acts of uulawful violence and interfering with the rights of the pickets. It is also noteworthy that much of this propaganda originates with outside organizations not remotely concerned with the present problem.

The facts of the case will speak for themselves. The peace officers of the county have acted in the only way they could in seeing that the laws ar enforced and the highways kept open to travel. To charge them with violence is to completely misstate the entire situation.

During the course of the past year, we have seen labor difficulties in certain of the eastern sections of the country and in many instances have seen a complete breakdown and demolarization of the law enforcement agencies in those communities. The direct result in every instance has been violence and bloodshed. The people of the community should not permit themselves to be misled by the attacks that are now being made against our constituted authorities but should appraise the facts as they really are. The peace officers of the county should be commended for the excellent stand that they have taken and for their efficiency in carrying out their public obligations. Without such stand, it is safe to say that the results of the past week would have been disastrous, both to the men on both sides directly involved, and to the community at large.

Very truly yours.

WARD SHELDON.

ALL QUIET ALONG RED DOG ROAD

Miss Elaine Black of Sacramento appeared Friday morning in Sheriff's office with $2,000 with which she had expected to bail out the six charged with rioting. Miss Black stated that she represented the International Defense League. Owing to the fact that the charge was rioting and not disturbing the peace, she found she had enough money to bail out but one of the six. The men in jail voted that Grant Spear be the one admitted to bail.

Following the habeas corpus proceedings Grant Spear returned to jail and James Vasion, father of seven, was given bail.

In the meantime, the number of men returning to their jobs in the the Murchie mine has increased to 128. This compares with 130 prior to the public highway blockade by the CIO affiliate pickets. No further resistance has been offered the Murchie miners in their daily going and coming from the mine. Sheriff Carl Tobiassen, however, and his deputies continue to escort the miners to and fro along the Red Dog road.

The disturbance caused last Thursday morning by a group of CIO affiliate pickets, numbering between 80 and 100, at the junction of the Murchie mine road with the Red Dog highway has resulted in various legal repercussions but no further violence or road obstruction.

The six pickets arrested for rioting Thursday, C. E. Circle, Roy Staton, Henry Yuen, James Vasion, Pete Zdrich and Grant Spear, appeared for arraignment Friday morning before Justice of the Peace Walter Mobley. Bail was fixed at $2,000.

George R. Anderson, San Francisco attorney, appeared Saturday morning in defense of the six in jail. At his request District Attorney Stoll waived the statutory 24 hours notice before instituting habeas corpus proceedings, and at 10 o'clock Saturday morning Attorney Anderson made his plea before Judge Raglan Tutttle in the superior court for a reduction in the bail of $2,000.

Sheriff Tobiassen is in recepit of many bellicose telegrams demanding that he release the men in jail. One received from the Maritime Federation secretary in San Francisco was peremptory in its tone. Appeal to Governor Merriam is threatened.

An examination of Grant Spear by Dr. Wood in the Landis Clinic this noon revealed that Spear's scalp wounds have become infected and he is now a patient in the clinic.

The decision of Judge Tuttle in denying the petition, brought under a habeas corpus writ Saturday, to reduce the bail Saturday, follows:

"The only question here is whether the bail is excessive or not. One only has had to read the papers to see the effect that riots have had on the public welfare in the United States during the last few years. It would appear that the Legislature assumed that this was a serious offense. All I have to go on at present is the nature of the charge. Rioting is a serious matter. The offense leads to violence and sometimes to bloodshed. I don't regard this as a very light charge.

"Of course, we all know that when men get into a crowd or mob they do things that they wouldn't do in ordinary sane moments, and oftentimes they are very regretful of what they have done as members of a mob or rioters. That, of course, is well established, that men lose their reason when they become involved in a riot or mob, and for that reason it is a rather serious offense. It is one that is very detrimental to the public welfare; there is no question about it in my mind. I don't look upon the offense as a light one although it is designated as a misdemeanor. The penalty was two years in the county jail, (one year now under the recent enactment of the code) but at the time of this enactment the legislature fixed the penalty at two years and $2,000 fine, which indicates that it was in the minds of the members of the legislature that it was not a very light offense but one that was very serious. I very much doubt that I am going to interfere with the discretion of the lower court when the bail

Press Report Omits Vital Part in Idaho Maryland Decision

A copy of the National Labor Relations Board's decision in the case of the Idaho Maryland Mines Corporation, which yesterday reached the Nugget office, reveals the fact that the Associated Press dispatch concerning this decision published in morning papers of January 11, was so much abbreviated that it omitted entirely one of the Board's most important findings.

Under heading, "Conclusions of Law," on page 24, of the type written copy received, is found:

1. International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter workers of America, Local 283, is a labor organization, within the meaning of Section 2 (5) of the (Wagner) Act.

2. Mine Workers Protective League is a labor organization within the meaning of Section 2 (5) of the (Wagner) Act.

The Associated Press dispatch does not hint that the labor board in this formal decision legalized for bargaining purposes the Mine Workers Protective League, but the wired dispatch, by that omission and by reciting the board's decision declaring void the Idaho Maryland's contract with the League, cast a cloud on all labor contracts, entered into by the Mine Workers Protective League.

This finding, legalizing the M. W. P. L., should be reassuring to mine owners, investors, and to mine workers, especially to the 1200 members of the League. In effect the National Labor Relations Board places the two organizations, the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers and the Mine Workers Protective league on a plane of equality.

It is only the particular contract between the Idaho Maryland and League that has been voided, no other contracts made by the League are affected by the decision in any way.

THE REMEDY

The reason for voiding the Idaho Maryland contract, stated briefly in the Associated Press dispatch, is confirmed in the copy of the board's decision now at hand. The exact words of the decision affecting the Idaho Maryland contract found on page 24, under the head of "The Remedy" follow:

"It is clear that the Respondent (Idaho Maryland) compelled many of its employees, contrary to their desire, to join the M. W. P. L. and that the respondent contributed support to M. W. P. L. In order to remedy its unlawful conduct therein, the respondent must cease requiring, urging, coercing or intimidating its employes to join the M. W. P. L.; must cease contributing to the support of the M. W P. L.; must withdraw all recognition from the M. W. P. L. as an organization representative of the respondent's employes concerning grievances, labor disputes, wages, rates of pay, hours of employment, and conditions of work; and must give no affect to the agreement recognizing the M. P. W. L. as the bargaining agent for its members."

COURTS TO DECIDE

This Labor Board decision and its various implications waits now upon appeal to and decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington to whom counsel for Idaho Maryland will carry it.

Since the Wagner Act provides that the Labor Board shall have jurisdiction only in labor disputes affecting interstate commerce, the question the Circuit Court of Appeals must first decide is whether or not labor disputes involving California gold mines which sell their gold to the United States Mint in San Francisco are within the jurisdiction of the Labor Board.

IMPORTED MATERIALS

The hearing of the complaint of the workers in the Old Brunswick mine at Grass Valley, developed testimony to the effect that the Idaho Maryland had purchased from eastern manufacturers in 1936 over $100,000 worth of materials used in its processes for recovering gold. This testimony was adduced with the apparent intention of showing that that too indicated the mining company was engaged in interstate commerce. The courts must then decide whether or not importations of such materials as steel cable and drill steel, etc. by the gold mining industry of California does in fact come within the legal definition of interstate commerce.

These questions must be determined in the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington, and may, if it consents, finally be heard by the United States Supreme Court. Assuming that the Labor Board gains jurisdiction, then there is still the question of whether or not the Idaho Maryland actually did influence illegally its employes for or against any union.

IDAHO MARYLAND MINES

Officials of the Idaho-Maryland Mines Corporation disclosed last week that the Corporation has notified the Labor Board that, while it recognized the principles of collective bargaining, and was willing at all times to negotiate with its employes and had no intention of discriminating against any labor organization, it must continue to assert its claim that not only is the Board without jurisdiction over it, as a corporation doing business wholly within the State of California, but that the ruling of the Board that the closing of the Old Brunswick Shaft was a lockout is unsupported by the evidence.

In its letter, the company stated that its considers its contract with the Mine Workers Protective League as still in force, and that the order of the Board directing the cancellation of the contract is contrary to law, as established by the Circuit Court of Appeals for this district.

Under the Wagner Act, the Board's order can only be enforced by the order of a Federal Court, and, on any application for an enforcement of the order, the company is entitled to raise all of the points of law which it raised at the hearing.

BIG AND LITTLE BUSINESS AFFECTED

Should the courts decide that importation from other states of materials used in the production or manufacture of commodities sold in California; does constitute interstate commerce in its legal sense, and that the Labor Board thereby does gain jurisdiction, then in event of labor disputes many businesses in California, big or little, will also come under the labor board's jurisdiction.

It would appear that the question of the Labor Board's jurisdiction is paramount. If affirmed it would give to the Labor Board power to reach its long arm into every state in the union to settle practically all labor disputes save those of farm and household help.

Thomas Cole and sonn, Fred Cole, of Pasadena who have large mining interests around Nevada City came up Thursday and after taking up some details pertaining to their properties Fred Cole left. He will return in a few days to continue with business pertaining to their holdings.

The Week

By H. M. L. Jr.

We read in the Chronicle of a self-styled "world's best salesman" who sold $40 worth of empty cardboard boxes to a sidewalk gathering of citizens in Etowah, Tennessee. The boxes, we are informed, were filled with plain, unheated air. Since the air in the cardboard cartons was merely cool and unadulterated, we servers, that the joke is truly on the servers, that the joke is truy on the gullible hillbillies. If, however, the boxes used in the swindle had been filled with "hot" air of good quality, we would have joined with all clear thinkers in praising the canny mountaineers for purchasing a considerable amount of this invaluable vapor for the small sum of forty dollars. The slicker who would for a small sum part with first rate hot air in this day and age, is indeed a fool. A man may go far, in these changing times of ours, if he but possess a decent quantity of first grade hot air. The lucky owners of an attractive variety of this precious gas may rise to become a politician, labor leader, or even a President.

Rare jewels and precious metals usually sell for a neat profit. In fact, these materials have in the past sold for more than most any other goods. Such is not now the case. Hot air sells better. The prices people are paying now for hotair are beyond the wildest dreams of old-time gold and jewelry salesmen. Hot air salesmen, however, are not as rigid in their demands as are venders of more concrete products. Ordinary sellers almost invariably demand money for goods. Hot air producers are willing to let people pay in different ways. Different groups of people have taken advantage of this latitude and have adopted varying methods of vending hot air. The people in dictatorships have chosen a rather painful way of paying for the indubitably excellent quality of hot air they receive. They pay through the nose.

Since our subject for today is hot air, the reader who understands the fundamentals of cause and effect will naturally expect us to discuss at length that vast amorphous conglomeration of expensive structures that has been erroneously dubbed by an unpolished country wit, the New Steal. There are two facts which prevent this expected discussion. One is that a great and growing army of brilliant thinkers daily attack the Administration in a grand manner which leaves nothing to be done by lesser scribes. The second reason is that the hot air producer by the New Deal, though terrifically expensive in terms of dollars and cents, is by far the mildest and most benign of all the warm vapors now enveloping the world. We pass in our discussion to a region where hot air costs much more dearly than in this country.

Since the days when the philosophy of "Gott und Me" was expounded to the world, the Germans have been recognized as propagandists in a big way. There past attainments, while great, are nothing to those of the present. It has always been easy to fool men by propaganda into going to war, into giving up their income, in taxes and into doing any number of things in the interest of the state, but when governments try to deprive their people of good substantial food, revolutions brew. At least, revolutions have usually been occasioned by similar situations in the past. We read in the newspapers that the sausage loving Germans are blissfully preparing to give up all but ten per cent of the pork in their sausage. The remaining ninety per cent of the new sausages will be cheap fish. If our Teutonic cousins accept this supreme degradation, we must bow our heads in sorrow that the great spirit of the Germans has finally been broken. They have paid the supreme price for hot air. Fish sausages—it is a subject too depressing to dwell upon.

Just Wonderin'

I wonder why we cannot take
A hint from ancient days,
And then adapt for modern times
Their wise and useful ways;
There was the oath Athenians took,
So very good and true,
That I would like to take it now,
And so, I'm sure, would you.

I wonder why we cannot, in the interest of our own city, town or community, make and keep the oath with which Athenians pledged fealty to their own lovely city of Athens.

Individually and collectively can we not say—

"We will never bring disgrace to this our city, by any act of cowardice or ever desert our suffering comrades in the ranks; We will fight for the ideals and sacred things of this city, both alone and with many; we will revere and obey the city's laws and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in those about us who are prone to annul or set them at naught; we will strive unceasingly to quicken the public sense of civic duty. And thus, in all ways, we will pass this city not less but greater, better and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

Because we love our city—
Her homes and her busy marts,
We pledge her our true allegiance
With loyal and faithful hearts.
We promise to make her better—
More wondrous from year to year,
That her glory and pride may be greater
When we are no longer here.

Uncle Silas says, "I'm glad the constitution guarantees us free speech and freedom of the press; but if it had mentioned free streets and the integrity of public highways, there would have been something more to brag about."

—A. MERRIAM CONNER.

KAY FRANCIS IN FIRST LADY HERE THURS., FRI.

"First Lady" a brilliant comedy, which will be shown Thursday and Friday at the Nevada Thetre.

The lovely dark Kay Francis is the star of the show and the chief political manipulator in its plot. She is an ambitious wife in the story, and she tries to maneuver her husband into the White House. so that she can be the person that the movie's title describes. Preston Foster is her husband.

But there are other socialite ladies in the Capital who have the same idea. Chief among these is Verree Teasdale, who has the same idea about her own husband. This is Walter Connoly, who is a tired, more or less henpecked oldster.

There is fanatical, be-spectacled leader of a woman's reform group, who controls millions of women votes and of course the chief rivals go out for her support. This old gal is none other than Louise Fazenda. So you can see the comic possibilities.

To add to the confusion there's a new and handsome young politician —Victor Jory, for whose influence and oratorical assets, Kay Francis and Verree Teasdale contend. And a lovely young deb from the South—Anita Louise—with whom he is in love.

A chimney fire at the Eddie Powell home on the corner of Pine and Spring streets brought out the fire department during the day but no damage was done the fire burning itself out.

YOU CAN'T HOLD CALIFORNIA BACK SAYS GIANNINI

America's famous business slogans come in for occasional good-natured joshing by our "good neighbors" abroad, but they serve as very effective rallying calls in both business and political worlds.

How are slogans born?

Sometimes they originate in the fertile minds of copy writers in an advertising department or agency. Quite often they come from the eager minds of lowly subordinates in organizations where active personnel departments solicit idea contributions from the staff.

In the case of Bank of America, however, the key slogan of the year is as likely as not to come from the brain of A. P. Giannini himself, chairman of the board of directors and founder of the widespread banking institution.

It is recalled that at the depth of the depression, "A. P." summoned his advertising director and remarked that it was about time to stop riding the toboggan and do something about turning the charts upward again.

"Let's spend more advertising money than we ever spent before," said he. "Let's work along the line of 'Back to Good Times'."

And "Back to Good Times" it was. The phrase was adopted as the slogan for a vigirous campaign which turned the tide of business volume for Bank of America. The contagion spread to other lines of business and very soon the psychology was felt throughout the nation.

Now "A. P." is responsible for Bank of America's 1938 slogan: "You can't hold California back." It came about just at the low point of the late 1937 recession.

With the uncanny prescience for which Giannini is famous, he concluded that the bottom had been reached, and that things were due for an upswing.

He was motoring with a party through a rural section of the state when someone casually remarked that despite business conditions, California was fortunate in natural resources.

"It has everything," promptly declared Giannini. "You can't hold California back."

Nobody made direct answer. Instead, conversation turned back to an interrupted discussion of the short comings of present day youth. Not for long, however.

"You can't hold California back!" rumbled the heavy voice from the front seat beside the driver.

The party sat in momentary silence. But no one offered comment, and very soon the Problem Child of Today was again the subject of earnest debate. Youugsters, it seemed, skimmed the cream of too many educational subjects and got too little grounding in fundamentals—

"You can't hold California back."

The hoarse bellow shattered educational theory to fragments. Youth was left to its own devices while the party turned to the subpect of industrial, financial and agricultural progress. It was agreed, unanimously, that you can't hold California back.

The phrase is now in the way of becoming a classic. Hundreds of newspapers and periodicals, not only in California, but throughout the nation, have echoed and re-echoed the Giannini war cry. For it is a fact that the Golden State has everything, and you can't hold California back.

"The lower court judge is running his own court, was elected for that purpose. He has a certain amount of discretion. I can't say that he abused it. I can't say that he has broken the law or infringed upon the law. The matter is entirely in his hands. Furthermore, within a very few days the evidence will be introduced at the preliminary hearing of the case, and at that time the Justice of the Peace can again take up the matter of fixing the bail, and these matters can be presented to him in the light of the evidence. which is not now before the court. I see no reason for interfering with the discretion which is vested in the lower court. The petition will be denied."
